1. In early 1948 General Nicolae Rădescu gave Major Constantin Maftei, reportedly his military representative in Austria and a member of the Iron Guard, 360,000 French francs through Colonel Ion Tomoroveanu in Paris.
2. Barbu Niculescu, Rădescu's nephew and secretary, gave Major Maftei 6,500 dollars in Switzerland. According to General Platon Chirnoaga, an Iron Guard leader in Austria, 3,000 dollars of this sum was to be distributed to certain unidentified resistance leaders in Austria by the Iron Guard.
3. During his various visits to Paris, General Rădescu has conferred frequently with Vasile Boideanu, a priest of the Rumanian Orthodox Church, who served as secretary-general of the Iron Guard between 1932 and 1940 and is reported as presently the head of the French-Italian-Spanish sector of Iron Guard activity. He has likewise frequently seen Axente Crisu alias Marin, a prominent member of the Moria Sima's Central Committee.
4. Rădescu is reported to have promised the Iron Guard two seats on the Rumanian National Committee.
